Parent Letter About ECN, Inc.

I have a 9 year old son with NLD who has attended Pragmatic classes for the last year at Educational Consultants of New England (ECN) in Waltham MA. He also attended the summer camp they offer - Camp Good Times. Camp has been in Stoneham for the last two years. My son has learned so much over the past year and didn't even realize it because he was having so much fun. The day is scheduled, organized and predictable. They hire quality people - go to the website and look under staff bios. - it is under the company section. The qualifications are impressive. They had a ton of energy and patience. And they hire enough of them! We knew Camp would be great because we saw what he was learning and how he felt after the weekly sessions.

My son has always had anxiety at the beginning of each school year. This year was a smooth transition - no tantrums, no stomach or sleeping problems. Camp helped him become a more confident kid and to like himself more despite the differences he sees in himself. He was a much more pleasant kid to be around too - less problems with transitions, more flexible, increased eye contact, less negotiating etc Everyone who knows him saw a positive difference in him.

The website for ECN is www.stopthatbehavior.com. I would have to say they are even better than top notch, I can't recommend them enough, they have been very helpful to our family. The staff listens to what the parents and even what the kids have to say. The best thing is that they "get it". They understand the parents and all of the anxiety we go through getting services for our kids. They genuinely enjoy the kids too.

In addition to the weekly classes and Camp they are also in the process of starting a school. They also do consulting to school systems, early intervention and OT, Speech and all kinds of services that tie into each other. More detail is on the website.

Call and talk to anyone there, they are all knowledgeable and pleasant.
